ONLINE INTEGRAL ART EXHIBITION 2020

This virtual Integral Art exhibition is the first of its kind and involves the artists who would have had their work physically present in Hungary at the Integral European Conference this May. Art exhibitions have been part of international Integral conferences since 2015 when an exhibition of 17 artist's work from around the world was curated by art professor and philosopher Michael Schwartz at the Integral Theory Conference in San Francisco.

Integral Art as a movement is very much in a nascent stage - only just beginning to emerge and loosely define itself. However, we do have some highly treasured writings to offer insight and a fertile ground for the movement to develop. To name two: Ken Wilber's masterpiece "Integral Art and Literary Theory" and Michael Schwartz's "Prolegomena to Art's Transdisciplinarity" - an inquiry into the transcendental conditions of art. These texts are of tremendous significance. Art and philosophy have been deeply and profoundly linked for hundreds of years - strongly influencing each other. The artists of the Integral movement have a vital, essential role to play in the evolution of human consciousness.
